DRAG ON HUSBAND KILLED HERSELF

Wife, Long Ill, Took Carbolic Acid, Although Her Daughter of Twelve Fought to Prevent Her.

DOCTORS WORKED IN VAIN.

Mrs. Lizzie Doris, of No. 111 East One Hundred and Thirtieth street, died to-day because she loved her husband and would no longer inflict upon him her continued illness. Her twelve-year-old daughter, Ella, fought with her last night to prevent her swallowing a quantity of carbolic acid, but the sick woman over her aside and drained the glass.

When her husband had gone to his business last night she struggled from her bed and with the glass of poison in her hand she went to her daughter in the front room, to whom she said: "I have about reached the conclusion that a woman afflicted as I am can only be a drag on a good, kind and loving husband and I have decided to end it all."

Ella struggled with her to reach the glass. She could not and while her mother held her at arm's length she drank the fluid and fell in pain to the floor. Doctors worked on her through the night, but with her weakened system the poison was too much and she died.

The family moved into the One Hundred and Thirtieth street house eight weeks ago, engaging rooms from Alexander Schmidt, the owner. According to Mrs. Schmidt Mrs. Doris was ill when she came to the house and rapidly grew worse. The little girl, who was going to school in the neighborhood, gave up her studies to take care of her mother, and never left her bedside, despite the entreaties of her father.

Through only a very rare aid, the child was able to do so. After the woman's death, her father and daughter left the house.

SOLD HER BED TO BUY DRINK.

Husband Tells Magistrate His Wife is a Slave to Rum and Has Wrecked His Home.

Mrs. Johanna Ryan, twenty-seven years old, of No. 43 West Fifty-third street, was arraigned in the West Side Police Court to-day on complaint of her husband, Maurice Ryan, who charged her with being a habitual drunkard. Magistrate Mayo committed her to the island for three months.

With Maurice in court were his two children, Johanna and Patrick, seven and two years old respectively. The children were wearily dressed, Patrick being clad only in a light coat, thrown about his body. The children were turned over to the care of the police.

According to Maurice his wife's craving for drink is so great that she even sold her bed and other household furniture to get whiskey. The children have been obliged to go hungry on account of her thirst. Whatever money she has been given for the maintenance of the children she has spent on drink.

CZAR GIVES FULL RIGHTS TO PEOPLE

Religious Freedom, Self-Government and Other Concessions, Most Important Since Freeing of Serfs.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 12.—The Czar has issued a decree providing for freedom of religion throughout his dominions, establishing to some degree local self-government and making other concessions to the village communities.

In the decree, which was made public to-day, after referring to the efforts of his predecessors, particularly his father, to add to the welfare of the Russian people, the Czar announces his decision to grant freedom of religion to all his subjects who profess non-Orthodox creeds, and to improve the conditions of village life and those of the local nobility and peasantry.

Among the measures outlined by him for the attainment of these ends is reform of the rural laws, which is to be effected with the advice of persons who possess the confidence of the people.

The system of administration in the various governments and districts is to be examined by the representatives of the different localities concerned, with the view of effecting the necessary amendments.

Measures are also to be taken to relieve the peasantry of the burdens of forced labor.

The decree, which was issued in commemoration of the anniversary of the birthday of Alexander III, is considered to be the most significant act of state since the emancipation of the serfs.

The public halls it is the proclamation of a new era, opening up bright prospects of the early improvement of Russian internal administration.

At the same time Mr. James's daughter, Miss Harriet Weed James, became ill with the same disease, and her condition in her Highland home is said to be very serious.

Several physicians who have been in attendance on the victims of the disease have expressed it as their opinion that the typhoid-pneumonia was induced by the subway excavations.

MORE TYPHOID IN JAMES FAMILY.

Wife and Son of Garfield Bank's President Dead, Now Daughter and Son's Wife are Attacked.

SUBWAY IS BLAMED FOR IT.

Typhoid-pneumonia, believed to have been contracted originally through the subway excavations, has laid a heavy hand on the family of Thomas L. James, President of the Lincoln National Bank, who was Postmaster-General in President Garfield's Cabinet. His wife and son died from it, and now his daughter and his son's widow are low with it.

It has been the custom of Mr. James and his family to live at the Murray Hill Hotel in winter, and there in January his wife was taken sick, dying on Feb. 8. At her funeral, which was held from the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Mr. James's son, Col. Charles Francis James, is believed to have contracted the disease. He and the rest of the family were taken to Mr. James's country home at Highland, N. J., and there Col. James died on Feb. 19.

Soon after his funeral his widow was taken sick with typhoid-pneumonia and is now in a critical condition at the home of her brother-in-law, Henry A. Appellus, No. 206 West Fifty-seventh street.

At the same time Mr. James's daughter, Miss Harriet Weed James, became ill with the same disease, and her condition in her Highland home is said to be very serious.

Several physicians who have been in attendance on the victims of the disease have expressed it as their opinion that the typhoid-pneumonia was induced by the subway excavations.

The public halls it is the proclamation of a new era, opening up bright prospects of the early improvement of Russian internal administration.

THE ROSE SHOW A FRAGRANT BOWER

All Varieties of Blossoms Show with the Queen of Flowers at a Most Attractive Exhibition.

Roses, carnations, orchids, every variety of flower which fashion makes it profitable to cultivate form one of the most beautiful flower shows which has been held for years at the American Institute, Nos. 19 and 21 West Forty-fourth street.

Though ostensibly only a rose exhibit, the gardens and hot houses of New York Island and New Jersey estates have sent their choicest blooms of every kind, from the simple pale pink primulas of early spring to the rarest orchids.

Among the roses there are several new varieties, one of which, the "Helen Gould," has a medium-sized flower and slender elongated buds of the deepest rose, shading to crimson. The "Mrs. Oliver Ames," evolved last year, is of a pale bluish pink and very effective in clusters.

Most beautiful is the Golden Gate rose, the latest yellow variety, paler in tint than the once popular Marechal Niel and of larger size.

In carnations the Lawson pink still reigns supreme in beauty and in size, though a new variety of white carnation, the "Mrs. J. J.," which obtained the first prize at the Carnation Convention held in Brooklyn last week, has a very fine showing.

The most beautiful corner of the exhibition is that occupied by the orchid group, by Laker & Hurrell, of Summit, N. J. No. 23, among them is one of the largest clusters of orchids ever seen in New York—a blaze with more than seventy-five delicate pink feathered flowers known as the "Palm Springs."

From Mrs. J. B. Trevor's collection of 55 Yonkers comes a prize-winning group of American Beauty roses, while C. F. Schuchman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has a particularly fine showing of the beautiful pink rose known as the "Mrs. Fitzgerald."
